

Employee Attrition Analysis

Data-Driven Insights on Why Talent Leaves

Prepared for Human Resources Management | Project M2

PROJECT OBJECTIVES

Identify Causes

Analyze key factors like salary and workload that contribute to employees leaving the firm.

Attrition Patterns

Distinguish behavioral differences between employees who stay versus those who exit.

Retention Strategy

Provide actionable recommendations to reduce turnover and boost employee morale.

| EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

8.32

Avg. Hours (Exited)

The Data Tells a Story:

Our analysis reveals a clear correlation: employees leaving the organization are overworked, underpaid, and dissatisfied with their environment compared to their peers who stay.

| THE BURDEN OF LONG HOURS

Stayed (No)

7.58 Hours

Group	Average Hours Worked
Stayed (No)	7.58 Hours
Left (Yes)	8.32 Hours

Left (Yes)

8.32 Hours

Employees who exited worked nearly 1 hour more per day on average than those who stayed.

COMPENSATION & INCOME GAP

WORKPLACE ENVIRONMENT

Culture Matters

Environment satisfaction scores (on a scale of 1-4) show a significant dip for employees who left.

Stayed: 2.77 / 4.00

Left: 2.47 / 4.00

AVERAGE JOB SATISFACTION

Low job satisfaction is a leading indicator of upcoming attrition.

THE "EXIT TRIGGER" PATTERN

High Pressure

Consistent overtime (8.3+ hrs) leads to burnout and reduced engagement.

Low Reward

Lower average income (₹61k) makes external opportunities more attractive.

| RETENTION STRATEGIES

- ✓ Work-Life Balance: Cap daily working hours and encourage breaks to prevent burnout.
- ✓ Competitive Pay: Review salary benchmarks to ensure high-performing talent is paid fairly.
- ✓ Culture Improvement: Conduct regular feedback sessions to improve office environment satisfaction.
- ✓ Engagement Programs: Increase job satisfaction through recognition and career growth paths.

Final Conclusions

Attrition is a result of multiple factors. By balancing workloads and aligning compensation with satisfaction, we can significantly reduce talent loss.

Questions?

Thank you for your time and attention.

A blurred background image of four business professionals (three men and one woman) in an office setting, gathered around a table with documents and charts. The image is intentionally out of focus to serve as a backdrop for the text.

Employee Attrition Project

Analyzing People, Predicting Growth.

End of Presentation